

So Delightful!

This Dining Room Furniture

Here's a gem of a dining-room set in the new and popular American Walnut wood.

We have devoted careful thought and attention to the selection of the pieces for this particular room that reflect the highest skill, both in design and finish.

It's a real delight to see so much simplicity of line and charm of design so effectively combined in the modern furniture we are now showing.

Period and modern designs and combinations of both offer you very broad choice.

You'll admire both the furniture and attractive prices we are making at this time.

WILLIAMSTOWN

The Congregational ladies' society will hold a business meeting at the home of Mrs. Ainsworth on Wednesday afternoon, immediately following a missionary meeting. All members please try to be present.

The funeral of Frank B. Boyce was held at the house on the afternoon of Tuesday, Nov. 12, Rev. Jesse A. Martin officiating. The bearers were a brother, Fred Boyce of Waitsfield, C. Edward Adams of Barre and George E. Adams of Fairhaven. Burial was in the village cemetery. F. B. Boyce was born in Moretown, March 7, 1859, and came to this town in 1884 to work on a farm for his cousin, George T. Colby. He was married on June 2, 1887, to Alma Adams. He had always been a farmer, renting in his early married life the farm of Oliver Walker and later that of his wife's cousin, Wilbur F. Adams. He bought and moved to the farm known as the Elder Field farm 23 years ago. Beside the wife and brother mentioned, he leaves two children, Miss Sadie A. Boyce, who is a teacher in the Barre schools, and a son, Earl A. Boyce, who lives at home. A sister, Mrs. W. C. Carlton, was unable to attend the funeral because of sickness. Mr. Boyce was a quiet, unassuming man, a good neighbor and a good citizen. He had a severe illness during his early married life and was never in robust health afterward, though he managed to accomplish as much as many stronger men. Bright's disease and arterial sclerosis were among the complications that caused his death.

William O. Martin and Harry M. Ladd arrived in town last Sunday, coming from Northfield, where they stayed Saturday night as guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Dillingham. Mr. Martin left on Monday morning for Richmond, from which place he went to his present home in White River Junction.

The annual supper and sale of the ladies' aid of the M. E. church last Saturday evening netted the sum of $84.80, after paying expenses. One-half of this amount has been donated by the society to the Allied War Work drive.

Arthur Smith and family of East Brookfield were visitors at Clarence Bailey's last Sunday. B. F. Smith, who had been with his daughter, Mrs. Myra Bailey, for a few days, returned to East Randolph with them.

Social dance next Friday evening in grange hall under the auspices of the order. Music by Gilbertson's orchestra.

Miss Edna E. Waldo returned last Saturday to Moretown and resumed her work as teacher in the village school on Monday.

The Home Study club will hold its opening meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Laura L. Ainsworth Thursday, Nov. 21, at 2:15 p. m. Miscellaneous quotations will be followed by current events. The dues, which are payable at this time, are to be given to the Red Cross society.

A son, George Webber, Jr., was born Saturday, Nov. 16, to Mr. and Mrs. George C. Webber of Springfield, Mass. Mrs. Webber is remembered in Barre as Miss Marguerite Cayhne, formerly of this city.

James Armstrong, who has been employed in Springfield, Mass., for the past six months, has returned to the city. Mr. Armstrong expects to leave later in the week for Chester, Pa., to be employed in the shipyards.

Because of a combination of circumstances which has interfered with other public gatherings in Barre this fall, the ladies' aid society of St. Monica's church has definitely abandoned plans for its annual bazaar. In its stead, there will be a concert and dance, accompanied by a sale of fancy work, although the affair will occupy only one evening, instead of three. The date reserved for the entertainment is Dec. 6, and a committee representing the clergymen and the ladies' auxiliary to the clan is completing preparations for the event.

A tropical rain, punctuated by occasional thunder peals and now and then a sharp flash of lightning last night furnished sort of a climax to the quick weather which this shambling fall of a fall has put over. People who trained a weather eye say that the electrical display presaged a drop in temperature; all of which is a safe prediction so long as no dates are vouchsafed. Rain fell heavily, but it failed to have a clarifying effect on the air, although the prediction to-day promised clearer weather.

The street department found a number of high highways badly washed this morning, but the damage was easily repaired.

Nine applicants for work in the shipyards at Chester, Pa., appeared yesterday at the government employment bureau in the Morse building, and other applications were being considered to-day by a representative of the U. S. emergency fleet corporation. It is believed that Barre has long since furnished its quota in the government's call for men to be employed in essential industries, but the applications are not being turned down. So prompt has been the response to the new appeal for labor that a series of mass meetings provided at the beginning of the week probably will be abandoned. The latest volunteers expect to go to Chester, Pa., within a few days.

The late-season hiatus caused by the necessary abandonment of football at the Goddard seminary is being filled with preparations for a basketball league, with several of the eight teams which are to compete already in the process of formation. School on the hill top opened so late in the gridiron season, that no attempt was made to organize an eleven, but the proposed basketball league is calculated to afford the necessary outlet for the energies of the seminary athletes. Prin. O. K. Hollister said to-day that eight teams will be in the race, and that two games each week will be played between now and Christmas. The commercial department is to be represented by two teams, and the remaining six are to be selected from other departments.

One of the proudest hunters in Barre is Elwell Densmore, a young man of street youngster who has yet to emerge from his teens. The boy has returned from a trip to Worcester mountain, where he was successful in bringing down an eight-point buck that lowered the beam at the 250 mark. He shot the deer Friday, but some time was occupied in getting the venison out of the woods.

The youthful nimrod has a brother in France and is hoping that the soldier will be home in time to enjoy a venison roast for Christmas. With here and there an exception, such as the one noted, hunters are meeting with indifferent success in their quest, and as the curtain closes on the hunting season to-morrow night, it is not at all likely that the season's toll of deer killed in Vermont this year will anywhere near approach the record of preceding years. A number of hunters who have been ranging the mountains in central Vermont returned to the city yesterday.

S. H. Lewis of Felchville, an old-timer among retail clerks of another generation in Barre, called on friends in the city yesterday while on his way to Groton, where he expects to be employed during the winter. Mr. Lewis comes from the town that gave Hank White to the world of minstrelsy and some of the dry humor which seems to be indigenous to the atmosphere of that quiet village is a part of his agreeable personality. Many years ago he was employed in the store which L. M. Averill conducted in this city, and in time he came to know most of the local celebrities of that day. His visit here yesterday acquainted him with the melancholy news that a number of them had long since succumbed to the sickle of the well-known grim reaper. Mr. Lewis goes to Groton to accept farm work, the opening having come to him through an advertisement in the New England Homestead offering the service of "a farm boy only 40,896 days old."

The funeral of Charles F. Hoisington of Lowell, Mass., a former well known resident, was held Sunday afternoon at his late home, Rev. Ernest Bartlett of the Central Congregational church of Dracut Center, officiating. The remains were brought to Randolph yesterday, where the interment was made at Southview cemetery, in the family lot. The ritual of the Knights of Pythias was read by Charles S. Pettigrew, representing the lodge of that order to which Mr. Hoisington belonged, and Rev. J. Wesley Miller gave the benediction. The bearers at Randolph were Pearl A. Bowen, W. S. Hoisington, T. J. Lavere and C. C. Morse, all of Bethel. A Lee Cady was in charge. Accompanying the remains were the widow, the son, Summer C. Hoisington, and his wife from Lowell, Mrs. Emma Hoisington from Derry, N. H., and Mr. Pettigrew. There was a profusion of flowers.

The chairman of the civics department of the Barre Woman's club to-day turned over to the treasurer the following additional subscriptions to the district nurse fund:

Mrs. W. J. Clapp, $1.00
Mrs. Katherine McDonald, 1.00
Two friends, 2.00
Mrs. John Kelly, 1.00
Mrs. Norman Morrison, 1.00

The boiler and other fixtures of a portable mill belonging to the Alden Lumber Co. of Fitchburg, Mass., drawn on wagons by five teams of two horses each, with the five teamsters, waited all day Monday at the Bascom house and Fisk's stable for better weather to continue the 120-mile trip from East Jaffrey, N. H., where the mill was set up last, to Rochester, where it is to be set up on the Scribner lot on the Brandon road. The mill will manufacture spruce and hard wood lumber.

Mrs. Jennie A. Bigelow lately received a letter from her grand nephew, Sgt. Ivers A. Hackett, at Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga., who is an instructor at the machine gun school. At the last school held there three of the eight men in his squad were the three highest in the company of 100 men.
